Northwest Weather

Oregon

By The Associated Press

Forecasters expected sunny skies and warmer temperatures across Oregon through Thursday.

Skies generally were clear this morning, with lows ranging from the 30s to low 50s in the east, and from the 40s to the 50s in the west.

Lows tonight will be in the 30s and 40s in the east, and in the upper 40s and lower 50s in the west.

Highs Thursday will be in the 70s and 80s in the east, and in the 80s to low 90s in the west.

Washington

Washington should return to warm, sunny weather over the next couple of days, the National Weather Service reported.

Tuesday's stormy weather gave way to fair conditions overnight as a high-pressure system settled over the state.

Clearing skies Tuesday evening and generally light winds allowed temperatures to plunge during the early morning. Spokane and Olympia were both down to 42 degrees by 4 a.m., followed closely by 43 on the coast near Forks.

Informed Decisions
with Les Lippitt
What Kind Of Information Will You Need?

Most people who take the time to put their affairs in order are amazed at the number of documents they must have and the amount of information that is necessary.

Some of this material is required to meet our State laws, some to prepare application to qualify for Social Security benefits, and some as a resource for the publication of a meaningful obituary. An experienced funeral counselor can assist by providing an organized record file that can serve as a guidebook for a surviving spouse or children. Unlike a will which sets forth an individual's wishes with respect to the disposition of assets, property, etc., this is a portfolio that contains all the needed documents and information. Its existence relieves the survivors of trying to piece together all that is required during a time when grief weighs so heavily upon them. Most families do not realize the need for such things as birth and marriage certificates, proof of age or termination of a prior marriage, etc. One husband said it well to his wife when they had completed their portfolio, "I don't know how you or the kids would have gotten through this."

As part of a long-standing tradition of service that began in 1913, Les Lippitt and the staff of Hughes-Ransom Mortuaries are pleased to provide these columns in the sincere hope that they will be of help to our neighbors. If you have a question about these columns or any aspect of funeral services, bereavement support, cremation or preplanning you are invited to call or visit the Hughes-Ransom Mortuaries in Astoria or Seaside.
